COMMENTOF THEDAY Intriguing

Reshuffle

THE diplomatic reshuffle which the Kremlin announced last week undoubtedly introduces a new element in the current international situation. Mr Stalin does not juggle around with his ambassadors and a deputy Foreign Minister without deep purpose. The reallocation of diplomatic posts has the of strengthening Soviet representation both in Peking and London-Mr Panyushkin moves from Washington to China and Mr Gromyko from the Foreign Ministry to the London Embassy. The real significance of the changes has yet to be made manifest. Mr Gromyko's appointment is particularly intriguing, for he has a him. high reputation as a skilled and polished diplomat. If he did not make himself popular as chief Boviet spokesman at the United Nations and as the initiator of the "walk-out" technique of expressing disapprova UN decisions, he succeeded in earning for himself a considerable amount of respect. The Western world will watch with undisguised interest his mission to London. It may well be that he has been entrusted with the task of trying to convince Mr Eden that the future peace of Europe can only

Despite this display of solidarity on the part of the United States, Britain and France, the Kremlin may believe that, given the proper approach by the right person (Mr Gromyko), the possibility exists of moving the British Foreign Office to become more positive in expressed desire for a settlement of outstanding European problems through Big Four negotiations.

Stockholm, June 15. The biggest spy trial in Sweden's history opens here on Monday when seven alleged members of a Communist spy ring will go before a magistrate's court on charges of revealing military secrets to Russia.

The defendants, including orie wdman, are accused by the Government of collecting vital strategic data for the Soviets between 1949 and 1951 and of making preparations for sabotage in the event of war.

Three of the defendants face possible life terms at hard labour, the maximum sentence under the Swedish law. Others are liable to gaol terms of two years or more.

American troops killed or wounded more than 1,000 Chinese in a five-day-old battle that picked up again last night (Sunday) on a Western front hill mass.

A 45th Division officer reported last night that troops from two American regiments have killed and wounded at least 1,175 Chinese in probably the biggest battle since last November's Little Gibraltar action. He said the two forces started fighting again last night after a relatively quiet day but could give no details immediately.

Several thousands of American and Chinese soldiers have tried since Thursday morning to drive one another off a T-shaped hill West of Chorwon. The casualties count indicates the Chinese have one or more regiments on Hill T and the 45th has announced troops of the 180th and 179th Regiments took three knobs now held by the Americans.

America Is Changing Coffin Of Famed Ideas On Issue In Excavations Of Colonies

London, June 15. America's critical attitude towards the Colonial issue is undergoing a definite change, according to Mr Chester Wilmot, historian and journalist, who has just returned from a tour of the United States.

In a talk to members of the British Empire Society in London, he said that there were signs of a more moderate policy emerging as a result of the cold war.

The underlying cause of this change was America's growing realisation that her defences against an enemy power were not inviolable.

"The study of the causes of crime has importance in the whole realm of human relations," writes Miss Fry. Social conditions may make crime greater or less, but they also play upon different degrees of "vulnerability" among the people. There is no doubt that the absence of an affectionate, secure home life is a main cause of delinquency and crime.

Miss Fry bears an historic name in English philanthropy. In the course of a long, distintinguished career of academic and social service, she was Principal of Somerville College, Oxford, from 1926 to 1931, Hon. Secretary of the Howard League for Penal Reform, and a Governor of the B.B.C.

When we are dealing with large numbers we cannot postulate mass variations in the moral character; we have rather to assume that changes of environment, of what one might cal "temptation weather," produce must we, in labelling them as these behaviour variations.

In fact the amount of crime in any country at any time dopends on two groups of factors, which we may conveniently call "climate" and "roots," vigorous stock of weeds ore a Why, for instance, should all worse nulsance in some years the age-groups of boys be- than in others, and the anti-

It is becoming customary to low emphasis upon his vulnerability. There are many people who, if all goes well, with good surroundings, good companions, HOR several years now the would be grossly unfair.

No one can, judge of the inward struggles of another, and it is possible that many who fall have still put up a braver fight than is demanded of their "bad risks," forget the possibility of strengthening and purifying the character, which we dare not deny in anyone.

HERE are two instances of bad risks." When juvenile. delinquency in Bristol, increased rapidly under the strain of the city's terrible blitz it was found showed that the increase was mainly whereas amongst the mentally subnormal : children. They could not stand up to the ten- pected average. sion under which they suddenly had to live.

Again, in a study of habitual criminals Dr Norval Morris found a group of thirteen men who had apparently gone straight" through all the turbulence of youth and fell into crime between thirty and forty. In ten out of the thirteen cases, prolonged ' unemployment separation by death or descriton from wife or mistress some break-up of their private lives led them, in some cases by the road of drunkenness to prison. Football is at its most beautiful by candlelight. The soft shadows cast a vell over the 98 kinds of foul play, and lend an old-world charm to the game. To the imaginative the ground is a walled garden with sundial and the referee's whistle seems but the tender chirp of a bird on a blossom-laden bough. The stately figures come and go, as in some solemn pavane, and the ball, like a moitled blood-orange, catches strange gleams as it pursues its erratic journey from foot to foot.

66DLEASE discuss the bidding of this hand," requests a Milwaukee correspondent. "We played it dt two no-trump and made ten tricks, but tight de-fence could have held us to eight

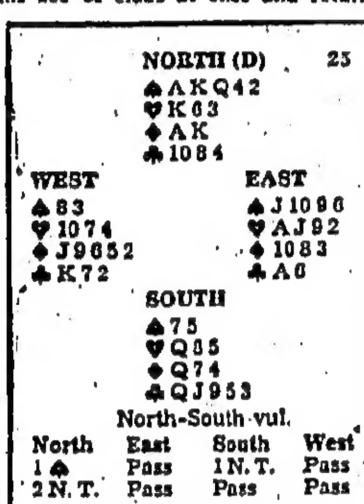

"Should we have reached a game contract? If so, should North have jumped to three no-trump instead of only two-or should South have proceeded on the three no-trump?"

It's a borderline hand, but experts would want to reach a game contract. They're quite wilking to play such hands for game on the theory that the opponents will seldom find the killing defence.

Three no-trump is beaten if West opens a heart, for then the defenders can get three heart tricks and two top clubs. The defence is hard to flid if West opens a diamond. Dummy wins and returns a club, and East has a problem.

a heart. But even if West does all this, the hearts will produce only two tricks if South has both the queen and ten or any of several four-card holdings in the suit.

· East is likely to decide to play his partner for five diamonds headed by he queen. Hence East will put up his ace of clubs at once and return a diamond to force out dummy's top card before West's entry is removed This line of play will allow South to win at least nine tricks.

Opening lead— 5

North's bid of two no-trump is quite correct in an expert game. I shows a hand that is too strong for an opening bid of one no-trump but not strong enough for an opening bid of two no-trump. This is quite a reasonable description of the North South should proceed on to three no-trump. If North had opened with one no-trump, South would consider but would eventually decide against raise to two no-trump. The decision would be a close one, however, so South should not hesitate when North shows a hand that was too strong for an opening bid of one no-truπæ.

Britain, as leaders in the 1950 European Championships, are hopeful but not too assured of athletics successes at the Helsinki Olympic Games.

Britain possesses at least half a dozen men and women who are potential winners of a coveted Olympic gold medal, but in the heat of combat and challenge, the unexpected often happens, as history has proved so often.

If success evades the British team, there will be no excuses from those who supervise and those who actually compete.

Mr Jack Crump, the team normal rivalry and interest are manager; says, "We are sending our strongest contingent to Helsinki, and we are confident that we shall do well. But if Olymplad.

His Way To Another Olympic Championship

When the U.S. Olympic track and field trials are held in Los Angeles, in July, a favoured contender for a place on the team will be Harrison Dillard, one of the world's great hurdlers and present holder of the 100-Metre Olympic sprint title.

If the 29-year-old Negro succeeds in winning a place on the team for the second time, he will be adding another distinction to an athletic career already crowded with honours.

OWENS WAS HIS IDOL

He was born in Cleveland. first idol was Jesse Owens, three events for the U.S. during the Olympics at Berlin in 1936. Owens gave him his first pair of track shoes and encouraged him to concentrate on the hurdles rather than the sprints.

Under the guidance of Eddie Finnigan at Baldwin-Wallace College, Dillard soon developed a greater leap in going over the hurdles than that achieved by longer-legged performers. Eventually, he was able to make leaps of close to 14 feet; two feet longer than those of his rivals: In the next few years he set nine world's records at various hurdling distances. THRILLS BUT NO FRILLS HEADINGLEY

By ARCHIE QUICK

The good earthy folk of Yorkshire know their cricket; they even appreciate when it is slow as long as it is interesting. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Headingley ground is as downright and utilitarian as the dour industrial city of Leeds which encompasses it.

Not for the people of the West Riding the rural pleasures of Horsham or the picturesque scene of Canterbury. They want to see cricket and no frills. Consequently, there are no frills at Hendingley-or on any other Yorkshire ground come to that, except the Scarborough Festival enclosure.

The 1938 match was won by Australia by five wickets, and it is sad to recall that the only survivors of that last prewar game now playing cricket are Edrich, Compton, Hardstaff, Wright and Hassett, and that England's two spearheads of attack Ken Farnes and Hedley Verity, both gave their lives in World War II. More than half of England is affected by new foot-and-mouth disease restrictions imposed because of the outbreak in Northern France:

The Ministry of Agriculture, making the announcement, said the disease in Northern France is moving westwards and may cause outbreaks in the more westerly counties of Southern England,

It had been decided, there-fore, to impose once again con-trolled area restrictions in England, Counties affected: Kent, London, Middlesex, Surrey, East and West
Sussex, Berkshire, Hampshire,
Isle of Wight, Wiltshire, Dorset,
Sometset, and the county borough of Bristol.

A second controlled area, covering the Midlands, will comprise Gloucestershire, Oxionals in the Buckinghamshire, Herifordshire, Bedfordshire, Northamptonshire, Warwickshire, Worcestershire, Shropshire, Skiffordshire, Leicestershire, Rutland, Nottinghamshire, Derbyshire, and Cheshire.

In both controlled areas store markets will be banned and the movement of stock will be restricted. Movement of stock out of either area will not be allowed except that the move-ment of stock for immediate alaughter will be permitted, under licence, from the controlled area of the Mkiland counties to the other controlled area, but not the other way.

The Ministry state that the

Arguments Alleged Of Exchange

Further legal arguments on the invalidity and otherwise of an alleged bill of exchange were heard when an action in which a Chinese bank is claiming $10,000 and costs from a firm of general merchants under this document continued before Mr Justice Williams in the Supreme Court this morning.

Plaintiffs were the Sze Hai Tong Banking and Insurance Co., Ltd., of 86, Bonham Strand West and defendants were the Chin Sheng Hong, general merchants of 20, Bonham Strand West.

From The Files 100 Years

The sudden immigration upwards of a thousand Chinese the reported advent of several thousands more, appears to have created a considerable degree of excitement in Colliornia: and Governor
Bigler has deemed the subject of such importance that he has specially addressed the Assembly regarding it.

Ago

We entirely agree that any attempt to prevent immigration should be very cautiously gone about; fraught as legislation will certainly be with consethough such action may be, appears to us conceived in a spirit of much illiberality; and Congrees will, no doubt, 'promptly repudiate such repudiatory ideas. But Governor Bigler and Californian Anti-Immigrationists are wrong in supposing that any contract is made between Chinese and others either here or in California: other than the verbal one of promising to repay those who advance the money to them to go down a certain proportion of whatever may be carned. This is all fair enough; and whatever may be American opinion of Chinese, one thing is deserving of particular remark, "the Heathen of this country do not dread. from their country men, a repudiation of even a verbal bond." We would have the State of California to mark, and well digest, these words instead of checking they should roster Chinese immigration, for with proper management; better colonists they will never have.

AMERICAN FEARS But Fear appears to be the principal of the Anti-Immigrationist reasons.—Fear that the Chinese will overrun the State which they boast of being the greatest in the American Union. Why Chinese have emigrated to our Straits' settlements for years past;—and at the present time, in Penang and Singapore, there are twice as many Chineso as there are in the whole of the American States together; and still, all who go there are met with a ready welcome. The news, generally, from San Ritchie, of the British Ship Willian Watson, was robbed and murdered on the high way—the verdict at the inquest on his body being that the deceased. The Emperor of China lives at Canton, and when the rebels get there his Majesty will have to fly to the hills." If the respective Editors will refer to the journal they allude to. They will see that it was our informant the Yuntai, not the Emperor, who said flight would be his only means of safety. We have since recommended him to take up his quarters in Hongkong; where, without troubling whether they are white or tawny coloured, we admit to the rights of citizenship, Chinese of all classes.
